The Gift of Self-Control

May the gift of self-control, be something, daily you present may you show self-restraint when others do things, to upset.

May you manage your temper, when others have lost theirs may you defuse the situation whenever tensions, start to flare.

May you hold your own tongue, when others are being rude may your silence, be what alters the unpleasantness, of their mood.

May you harness your pride, when others ego's are inflated may your constraint cause . . . their arrogance to be deflated.

May the gift of temperance, you give to others everyday may you have self-control . . . no matter who comes your way!
